

SATURDAY, JANUARY 26, 1895.

THE BROOKLYN STRIKE.

The street car companies of Brooklyn, New York, reduced the wages of employees below living rates. The employees went out on a strike. As the refusal of men to work at stated wages amounts to nothing if others can be found who will take their places, the strikers in some instances resorted to violence to prevent the cars from running. This gave the railroad companies a pretext for calling upon the authorities for protection. By order of Governor Morton several companies of the New York National Guard were ordered to Brooklyn. The militia and the police protected the men who took the places of the strikers, but serious riots occurred and several persons were seriously wounded and a few killed.

As travel was impeded the courts were applied to for a writ to compel the street car companies to run a sufficient number of cars to accommodate the public. Judge Gaynor of the Superior Court holds that the companies are obliged by their franchises to run cars to conveniently accommodate the public, and if they cannot procure men to handle the cars at the wages now paid they must increase the wages. Corporations have public duties to perform which transcend their obligations to their stockholders. If street car companies received a franchise from the State, and in return have assumed obligations for the performance of which they are accountable to the State. They are accountable to the public first and to the stockholders afterwards. If they cannot get labor performed to fulfill the duties devolving upon them at the wages they offer, they must pay what may be necessary to get it. If the conditions respecting hours or otherwise compel labor the companies must adopt more lenient conditions. Those matters must not stop the cars an hour.

This decision must be satisfactory to every reasonable person. The State grants a franchise to a corporation upon certain conditions. The use of a public highway is given a corporation and protection guaranteed its property by the State or municipality. In return for this the corporation assumes certain obligations to the public. These obligations it should be made to comply with. It is no business of the public what wages the corporation pays its employees if it complies with the conditions of its franchise or charter.

If the higher courts sustain Judge Gaynor's decision, the Brooklyn street car companies will have to pay the wages demanded by its employees, unless it can get other men to take their places for less, or forfeit their franchises to the State.

THE PUBLISHING COMPANY'S TACTICS.

The Publishing Company flounders like a fish in a mud puddle over the railroad indebtedness to the Government and the enforcement of the Interstate Commerce Act. It dare not offend the railroad by saying aught against the Reilly Funding bill, and, fearing public sentiment, it says naught in favor of the bill. Not a line appears in the columns of its paper to indicate what its opinion is of the Funding bill or of the enforcement of the Interstate Commerce Act. If it sees the injustice of charging three times as much for freight from Chicago to Reno as from Chicago to San Francisco, 300 miles further west, it makes no protest against it in the columns of its paper, though some of the members of the company do so—privately, of course.

The Publishing Company has much to say, however, about the Silver party. Though it never grumbles at railroad methods, it is continually snarling at the Silver party, which it would have the people believe is the cause of railroad extortion.

The Publishing Company may have forgotten, though a good many people have not, that the Republican State Convention which assembled in Reno last August voted down a resolution similar to that adopted by the Silver party. The Publishing Company endorsed the action of the convention and supported its nominees, and since election has been denouncing the Silver party for defeating them. It putted the Democrats on the back during the campaign and encouraged them to stay in the fight to defeat the Silver party, and now, to maintain its reputation for inconsistency and inconsistency it whines because some of the officers elected by the Silver party were formerly Democrats.

The people understand that the Silver party is composed of former Democrats and Republicans, who decided to be no longer duped by the Wall street twins. It is not necessary for the Publishing Company to dwell on the fact that some of the men elected on the Silver ticket had been Democrats, as the people are aware of that. Instead of wasting its time on that subject why does not the company give the people some information on the Funding bill and the Interstate Commerce Act and whether or not it believes that the defeat of the one and the enforcement of the other would benefit Nevada.

Lord Randolph Churchill, son of the Earl of Marlborough, died yesterday in London. Some years ago he married an American girl, the daughter of Leonard Jerome of New York. He was at one time an acknowledged leader of the Conservative or Tory party, in the House of Commons, and crossed swords in debate with Gladstone.

The Brooklyn Strike Not Yet Ended. BROOKLYN, January 25.—The street car strike is nearly over. The companies say the strikers may return to work as individuals, but not through treaties of their executive committee. Trolley cars are running on nearly all the lines. The militia have been ordered back to New York. The only trouble since midnight was wire cutting. There is no opposition to the running of cars on account of Justice Gaynor's mandamus opinion. Police Commissioner Wells, after investigation, concluded that the shooting of Thomas Kearney on the roof of a house was unwarranted.

Policemen patrolling Bedford avenue (last morning) noticed a wagon full of men cutting wires. The policemen made a rush at the wagon. The driver whipped up the team and escaped. Three men at work in a street cutting wires were captured. The policemen fired several shots at the wagon and are pretty certain some shots took effect. The strikers say they are as determined as ever to hold out. If an agreement is not made before the troops are removed, there will be, in the opinion of many, a renewal of the trouble.

At Ridgewood station, where about 25 new men arrived to work for the railroad company the strikers surrounded them and succeeded in hustling them down Palmetto street. Police and militia were sent to the rescue, and succeeded in overtaking the kidnappers and prisoners and rescued six of the latter. The other 19 are taken to the headquarters of the strikers and kept prisoners.

A hoisting mob is in front of the South precinct station at Green Point, surrounding a string of cars deserted by motormen. The police are absolutely powerless. A crowd smashed the windows of the street cars. The strikers, under Walking Delegate Hill, have induced the crews of many cross-town and Graham avenue lines to desert.

A dynamite cartridge exploded in front of 474 Myrtle avenue to-day. Many windows were broken.

Three shots were fired by unknown persons in a mob at Bedford avenue and Lorimer street at 3 o'clock this afternoon at a car. The Lorimer street line cars had been stalled there three hours and all the motormen had deserted their posts. The police brought a number of motormen, but were compelled to take them back to the cross-town stables.

THE CALIFORNIA LEGISLATURE.

Rebelling Against Unnecessary Expense and Boastfulness.

SACRAMENTO, January 25.—In the Senate Holloway offered a resolution to the effect that no more attaches be appointed by the Senate except upon a four-fifths vote. He declared that the present daily expense for Senate attaches was almost $300. He said that with attaches tumbling over each other to keep out of the way it was time to take action. He did not want to go back to his constituents and have the Senate compared to the forty thieves told us in the Arabian Nights. The resolution was adopted.

Or's resolution for the appointment of a special committee to investigate the recent election in San Francisco, came up as a special order. Biggy of San Francisco in an angry speech said: "San Francisco politicians have become so corrupt under the control of those unconvicted felons—that blind lying devil, Chris Buckley, and that rascal, Sam Rainey, whom no later than to-day I saw lobbying on the floor of this small chamber—and I repeat the charge, they are unconvicted felons; that a decent man can have nothing to do with politics."

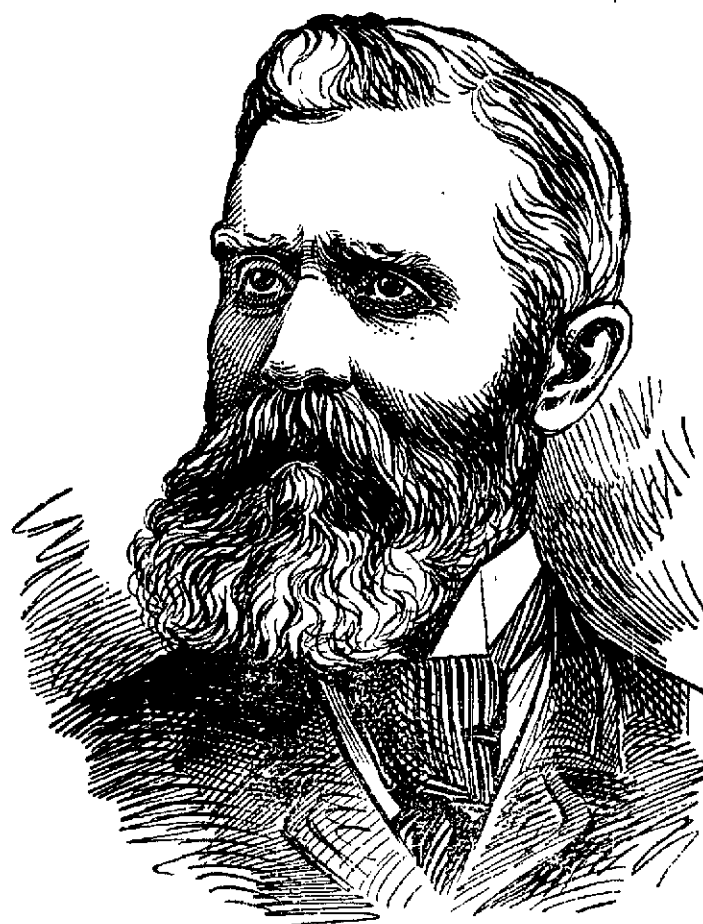

He opposed Orr's resolution but wanted the Governor to appoint a committee with power to go to the bottom of the corruption and report to the Governor and to the next Legislature. The matter went over.

What Thomas Harrison of North Dakota Owes to Paine's Celery Compound.

The world has had in all just 15 decisive battles. But every man has in his lifetime more decisive battles than this.

The important epochs in man's life that settle for him wealth, position and often life itself come without warning.

Weakness, indecision, and lack of nerve force at these turning points is fatal. In long and doubtful sickness, when life itself trembles in the balance, a little more strength and power of resistance to disease makes the difference between life and death.

Thin people, with depleted, diseased blood run big risks. Careful men and women all over the country are building up their systems and storing the nerve centers with energy now. They are taking that remarkable blood purifier and nerve food Paine's celery compound.

It cannot be repeated too often that the blood is the fountain which supplies every part of the body. If this life giving medium lacks vigor and richness, nerves, brain, heart, kidneys and lungs immediately suffer. The weakest spot will give way first.

If you find yourself growing weak, nervous, without appetite—look out. You are starving some important organ through insufficient nutrition.

the famous Harrison farms of North Dakota. He holds the office of notary public and is coroner of Trail county. He writes from Blanchard, North Dakota:

"Two years ago when the grip was prevalent in this country, I suffered very much from this trouble. The disease lingered with me until it developed into catarrh of the head. For this loathsome trouble I tried many remedies advertised for catarrh, without any permanent relief, and while spending the winter of 92-93 in Los Angeles I was treated by a specialist without any better results. Seeing Paine's celery compound advertised, I tried it, not expecting much relief, as I thought that I could not be cured. I used one bottle as directed, and was entirely and permanently cured. This was over six months ago, and I have not experienced a return of any of the symptoms, though I have been exposed to the inclement weather of the North Dakota and have not caught the least cold this winter, when, had I been troubled with the catarrh, I would have had cold after cold all winter. I will cheerfully answer any inquiries as to the correctness of my statements. Many around here are using the compound on the strength of my recommendation. It makes people well."

LaGrippe. During the prevalence of the grippé the past seasons it was a noticeable fact that those who depended upon Dr. King's New Discovery, not only had a speedy recovery, but escaped all of the troublesome after-effects of the malady. This remedy seems to have a peculiar power in affecting rapid cures of La Grippe, but in all diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs, and has cured cases of Asthma and Hay Fever of long standing. Try it and be convinced. It won't disappoint. Free Trial Bottles at S. J. Hodgkinson's drug store.

At its last meeting the Board of County Commissioners of Nye county redeemed $4,412.75 worth of county scrip for $1,705.17. Pretty good investment, that.

JOINT SESSION.

At 2:20 P. M. the Senate and Assembly met in joint convention in the Assembly chamber, Lieutenant-Governor Sadler presiding, for the purpose of hearing an address from President Stubbs of the State University on the possibilities and the present needs of that institution. He referred to the Governor's message wherein he referred to this important subject, and the tendencies of the world to advance in education and the spirit of the age, especially within the last quarter of a century, as to the improvement and progress in arms, military methods and equipments, as well as in practical, scientific and humanitarian attainments. He instanced the Lick School and the Armour, Drexel and Pratt Institutes and other famous educational and scientific institutions throughout the nation. The liberal arts, history, civil government and finance and kindred subjects were included in his address. Among the wants of the University are a School of Mines and Mining, where our young men can be educated to be mining superintendents and workers of mines and ores. Agricultural and Mechanical Arts Schools, where they can be trained in those pursuits to the best advantage. The Agricultural Experiment Station is already useful, but needs further extension and improvement. The Normal Department is also progressing well. In fact all departments are progressing very creditably, but more room and buildings are needed with the increasing attendance, popularity and utility of the University, and it certainly was to be hoped that this Legislature would provide ways and means therefor.

This brief synopsis gives but a limited idea of President Stubbs' address, which occupied over an hour and was listened to with profound attention, many ladies being present.

AT THE HIGH SCHOOL.

Humorous Illustration of Woman Suffrage.

The program published in yesterday morning's JOURNAL was well rendered in the High School yesterday afternoon. The songs, essays, dialogue and recitations showed careful preparation and elicited much applause from the large audience present. As the program seemed in a large measure devoted to woman the ladies of Reno were out in force to hear it.

Among other interesting features a dialogue by Mrs. M. S. Doten, entitled "Woman Suffrage from the Male Point of View," was provocative of much merriment. It represents a political campaign in which woman actively participate. All sorts of influences are brought to bear upon the women voters and they show themselves almost as good bribe-takers and bribe-takers as men, being away hither and thither by the office seekers, and finally captured by railroad passes issued by a political magnate of the male persuasion. The girls and boys entered into the spirit of the play very creditably. Miss Gertrude Caine and Master Stuart, who represented the candidates for office, doing exceptionally well.

The High School monthly entertainments are becoming very interesting and popular. A larger attendance, however, of fathers is very desirable. Possibly a greater number of good essays, debates and declamations would be interesting to many, as affording greater scope for originality and elocutionary effort. The young people now in the High School show excellent talent and are worthy successors of the many bright boys and girls that have preceded them.

AN ACCIDENT NEAR TRUCKEE.

The Cause of the Mall Train Being Late Yesterday.

Yesterday morning a freight train of thirty cars was made up on the track in the Truckee yard. The engine was detached and the cars started on the track eastward. Being on a down grade the cars gained headway rapidly and some distance east of Truckee collided with the "swing" train which was west-bound, causing a very bad wreck. The engineer and fireman of the swing were slightly injured, though it is said their escape from death was almost miraculous. The engine was almost totally demolished and is little better than scrap iron. Several freight cars were smashed into kindling wood, and it took the wrecking crew from Truckee several hours to clear the track so that trains could pass.

LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEES.

Several Members Here to Look After the State Institutions.

Senators Skaggs, Wilson, Gregovich, Comins and Assemblymen Coryell, Wieland, Orsler, Conbois, Wilson, Flannigan, McNaughton, McDonald, Hogan, Beck and Stanley arrived from Carson last evening. WEATHER BULLETIN.

Storm, Cold and Warm Waves—February Temperature and Precipitation.

(Copyrighted 1894, by W. T. Foster.)

St. Joseph Mo., Jan. 23.—My last bulletin gave forecast of the storm wave to cross the continent from the 25th to the 26th and the next will reach the Pacific Coast about the 30th, cross the Western mountain country by the close of the 31st, the great central valleys from February 1st to 3d and the Eastern States about the 4th.

Temperatures will average low during this period following the storm wave and precipitation will be above the average during the month.

The second February disturbance will reach the Pacific Coast about the 5th, cross the Western mountain country by the close of the 5th, the great central valleys from the 6th to the 9th and the Eastern States about the 10th.

This disturbance will increase in force as it moves eastward and general precipitation will not amount to much.

The principal feature of this disturbance will be the cold wave following it which will probably amount to a blizzard in the Northeastern States.

Warm waves will cross the Western mountain country about January 30th, and February 3th, the great central valleys February 1st and 7th and the Eastern States the 3d and 9th.

Cool waves will cross the Western mountain country about February the 2d and 8th, the great central valleys the 4th and 10th and the Eastern States the 6th and 12th.

On the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, upper and lower lakes, and in the Ohio valley, the temperature in February will average below and the rainfall about normal. In Texas, the Mississippi and Missouri valleys, the temperature will average above and the rainfall about or below normal.

My forecasts of temperature and rainfall for December, similar to the above based on discoveries made in 1892 and partially worked out since, proved 90 per cent correct. I cannot expect to keep up that average, however, till the calculations are completed.

The principal force of storm features of February will probably be: First half of the month warmer than the last half; warmest part of the month just preceding the storm wave to cross the continent from the 6th to the 11th; coldest cold waves following this storm and the one to cross from the 23d to the 27th. The last part of the month will be the best ice weather in the Northern States, except a day or two at the beginning of the month.

Will give the details of the spring drought in the next bulletin.

THE MAGNETIC NEEDLE.

Twenty-one years, 1870 to 1870, inclusive, the daily temperature in Chicago averaged 46.4 degrees above zero, and twenty-one years, 1871 to 1891, the average was 43.7 degrees. This shows that the temperature taken every day for two periods of twenty-one years each averaged 1.3 degrees warmer during the last period.

The above is in accord with a long train of facts in reference to the climate of North America. It is well known that many years ago the winters were much more severe in the upper Mississippi valley and about the upper lakes than they have been of more recent years.

If the reader will bear in mind that the prevailing winds are from the north on the east side of the north magnetic pole, the center of which is now northwest of Baffin's bay; it will readily appear that as that magnetic pole moves westward these prevailing north winds will have less force at Chicago and east of that point about the lower lakes until the western part of the Icelandic low north magnetic pole is reached.

As shown in a previous study the Icelandic low is also moving westward and in its western parts the prevailing winds are also from the north, resulting in increased cold.

At New Bedford, Mass., the daily temperature for twenty-one years—1871 to 1891 inclusive—averaged .86 of a degree warmer than for twenty-one years from 1850 to 1870 inclusive. From an older record at Philadelphia the daily temperature from 1808 to 1828 averaged 4.5 degrees warmer than from 1807 to 1887.

These evidences are very conclusive that the climate is changing to warmer in the upper Mississippi valley and upper lake countries and to colder in the Northeastern States. The cause can be none other than the westward movements of the magnetic north pole.

In America the compass indicates a continuous westward movement of the north magnetic pole, but in northern Europe, particularly at London, there are indications of vacillation and a returning to the eastward of the Icelandic magnetic pole.

It is not reasonable to suppose that the Icelandic pole moves eastward while the North American is moving westward and the electricians are deceived about it in this way:

The magnetic needle does not point directly toward the center of the magnetic pole to which it owes allegiance and therefore a slight variation east or west does not indicate that the center of the magnetic pole has moved.

To arrive at right conclusions about this matter one must keep in view the cause that keeps the magnetic needle pointing northward. The cause is not the north magnetic pole but the lines of force that surround that pole.

Electricians say we do not know which way electricity moves, or if it moves at all its direction is opposite to that of matter. They would say that if electricity causes the wind to blow the electricity and the wind move in opposite directions.

I cannot understand such philosophy. I believe that electricity carries matter with it and that the ether of space flows in the opposite direction to the movements of electrical currents.

All agree that a force surrounds the north magnetic poles of the earth situated in North America and northeastern Asia where perpetual high barometer are found. That force is represented by lines, weaker as we recede from the pole or center, but there are no lines about it any more than there are lines in the atmosphere. When these lines of force strike the magnetic needle it takes position at right angles to the lines or directly across them.

These lines of force approximate to circles with the magnetic pole as their center but from many causes they often break away from their circular form causing the needle to vary and this variation deceives the electricians, leading them to conclude that the general variation of the needle is changed.

As Explanation Wanted of the Presence of These Tan Spots.
Can any of your readers explain the meaning of the tan spots seen so commonly over the eyes in black and tan dogs of most breeds?
When in Melbourne last year, I went carefully over all the dogs in a show with one of the stewards, and we found the spots in all the black and tan terriers, foxhounds, deerhounds, collies, hushers, etc., but I could get no information regarding them from the experts.

In some of the highly bred toy dogs, as the small black and tan terriers, I found on inquiry that these spots, formerly so very conspicuous, were being bred out and had nearly disappeared. Their persistence through so many strongly marked varieties, except those of late date, is singular, for there is fairly good proof that when first domesticated the dog was red or brown, like the pariah, dingo, etc.

As far as I can see, we do not find the spots white on a black or dark ground, nor yet black or dark on a white or light ground. My explanation is that they have arisen as a permanent marking after the dogs "sport" to black under domestication and have been preserved and developed through natural selection. Possibly they are protective and simulate eyes.

One morning, just at dawn, I had occasion to go out into the garden, and while stooping to examine some flowers, near a fence partly covered with creepers, I suddenly saw an animal's head looking through, and what seemed to be two seemingly large and ferocious black eyes glared at me. Suspecting that a black leopard was about to spring over, I started back, clapped my hands and shouted. To my relief, however, I saw a tail wag and found that the spectator was a cooly's dog I knew very well and which recognized me. The use of the tan spots—in this case at least—then occurred to me.

May it not be that the spots thus serve a protective purpose and have often saved the lives of dogs (black dogs) from their enemies, the smaller felines, such as the clouded leopard, etc.? Perhaps the matter is not new, but if it is it seems worth looking into.

I have several dogs about here now with black bodies and heads. The tan spots, rather pale, are of the size of a shilling. I have shot one, keeping the skin of the head as a curiosity.—S. E. Peal in Nature.

"Take It Easy."
One cannot travel in Ireland without perceiving that the so many horsepower and perpetual catching of trains theory of life is not one that is accepted by the Irish people, and I do not think it over will be. Their religion, their traditions, their chief occupations, their temperaments, all of which I suppose are closely allied, are opposed to it.

The saying, "Take it easy, and if you can't take it any take it as easy as you can," doubtless represents their theory of life, and, for my part, if it were a question either of dietaries or of morals, I would sooner have to defend that view of existence than the so many horsepower one. So far from a wise man getting all he can out of himself in one direction, he will, it seems to me, rigidly and carefully abstain from doing so in the interests of that catholic and harmonious development which requires that he should get a little out of himself in every direction.

One would not like to assert that the bulk of the Irish people are "harmoniously developed." But neither, if I may be permitted to say so, are the English or the Scotch people, and as in reality all three probably are by lapsed activity or lapsed inactivity, it still remains to be seen whether too much perpetual catching of trains or too much taking it "easy" is, on the whole, the wiser course and the less insane in interpretation of the purport and uses of life.—Blackwood's Magazine.

It Beats Acting.
They had just emerged from the telephone exchange when they were employed.
"Sometimes," said one of them, "I think that I would like to be famous; that I would like to go on the stage and act on the lecture platform. Then, again, I think not."
"I think not all the time," was the positively spoken rejoinder.
"Still it is a nice notion to play upon the emotions of the multitude."
"Of course it is. That's what makes it so jolly in the telephone exchange. When we talk sweetly to some man through the phone, I can tell by the way he coos back that he is smirking in the most absurd manner. And if I want to make him angry I can tell him the time's busy and ring in his ear. I tell you, my dear, when it comes to playing on the emotions of the multitude Sarah Bernhardt will have to give extra matinees if she wants to surpass us in opportunity."—Kate Field's Washington.
